

Usage of Internet and computer application in the education of subject Health Education

SUMMARY:

The thesis focuses on usage of information technologies in the education of subject Health Education. According to this scope, the list of relevant internet sites and computer assisted learning applications is provided. The next main focus is given to the relationship between using computers and health. The result of research on this field is, that risks are underestimated in the School Educational Program.

The worksheets created as part of the thesis can increase the knowledge of possible risks of internet browsing. The benefit to the subject Health Education can be the implementation of the computer assisted learning application.

KEYWORDS:

Computer, Internet, Health, Computer Assisted Learning